Ratchaburi

Ratchaburi is the land of the Mae Klong Basin civilization with the foggy Tanao Si Mountains. It is one province in the west of central Thailand which is full of various geographical features; for example, the low-lying land along the fertile Mae Klong Basin, fields, and Tanao Si Mountains which lie in to east stretching to meet the Thailand-Myanmar border.

From legend and historical evidence, it is assumed that Ratchaburi used to be one of the civilized kingdoms of Suvarnabhumi in the past, from the reign of the Great King Asoka of India, who announced the Lord Buddha's teachings through this land around 325 B.C. The central town of ruling power of Suvarnabhumi was Nakhon Pathom which was called "Dvaravati" at that time. In addition, Ratchaburi was also the meeting point of ancient tradesmen and the gateway to Burma. Therefore, Ratchaburi is one of the most crowded cities with different races. Nowadays, Ratchaburi is full of many interesting things; history, ruins, ways of life, culture, hand-crafted and moulded works, basketry, tides and mountains, and beautiful nature waiting for us to visit.

Ratchaburi province has an area of 5,196 square kilometres. It is divided into 10 Amphoes are Amphoe Mueang Ratchaburi, Amphoe Photharam, Amphoe Damnoen Saduak, Amphoe Pak Tho, Amphoe Chom Bueng, Amphoe Bang Phae, Amphoe Wat Phleng, Amphoe Suan Phueng, Amphoe Ban Pong and Amphoe Ban Kha.

ATTRACTIONS

Amphoe Mueang Ratchaburi

City Pillar Shrine (ศาลเจ้าพ่อหลักเมือง)

is situated near the lodging house of Phanurangsi Ratchaburi Engineering Military Camp, which is about 600 metres from the town. It is the old city pillar built in the reign of King Rama II. Within the Military Camp, visitors can inspect the Army Engineer Museum, situated at Tambon Khok Mo, which is a historical centre to collect sources regarding the army engineer's activities, tools, and ancient appliances. It is open on Mondays –Fridays at 8.30 a.m.-4.30 p.m. For further information, please call Tel. 0 3233 7267 is located on the Woradet roadside, Tambon Na Mueang, near the clock tower on the Mae Klong riverside. This building used to be the city hall, built in the reign of the King Rama VI in 1922. Later, it was changed to be the national museum in 1983 and was renovated many times. Until 1991, Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn presided over the official opening ceremony of the museum. Visitors can see the exhibition highlighting Ratchaburi in many aspects; such as history, archaeology, ethnology, geology, traditional arts, fishery tools, culture of the Ratchaburi people in different groups such as Lao Song, Karen, and Thai Yuan, including many tourist attractions, prominent artefacts besides the royal sword Ratchasattra of Monthon Ratchaburi. Also, we can see the Radiating Bodhisattva Avalokitesvara image with characteristics of Ancient Khmer art in Bayon style, which is one of five of its kind excavated in Thailand with the most complete and beautiful features. The museum opens daily at 8.30 a.m.–4.30 p.m. It is closed on Mondays, Tuesdays and public holidays. Admission is Bt 100. For more details, please call Tel. 0 3232 1513 Fax 0 3232 7235.

Luangpho Kaenchan (หลวงพ่อแก่นจันทน์)

is situated at Wat Chong Lom near the old city, on Woradet roadside, in the centre of the town. It is a Buddha image in the gesture of holding an alms bowl in his arms calmly. This widely respected image is made of bronze and its base is sculptured from sandalwood, which has a sweet smell. The image is 2.26 metres high.

Wat Mahathat Worawihan (วัดมหาธาตุวรวิหาร) which local people call Wat Na Phrathat or Wat Phra Si Rattana Mahathat is an old temple, situated on Khao Ngu Road, Tambon Na Mueang in Mueang Ratchaburi municipal area. It is believed that this temple was built in the Dvaravati Period, around the 10^{th}–11^{th} Century, nearly the same time as when the old city of Ratchaburi was built. Later, a Khmer or Lop Buri sanctuary was built over the temple around the 13^{th} Century to be the centre of the town according to the Khmer belief regarding the universe. Then, for fear that the sanctuary might tumble down, a new Phra Prang was built at the beginning of the Ayutthaya era, around the 15^{th}-16^{th} Century. Therefore, we can see the overlapping style of architecture. Moreover, interesting things in the temple are Wihan Luang where Phra Mongkhon Buri is enshrined. It is a stucco Buddha image in the gesture of subduing Mara, which has a lap width of 8 Sok 1 Khuep. Its characteristic is of the Pre-Ayutthaya art, with a Sukhothai style face. It has a long body but short knees. He turns his face to the east, and there is another Buddha image behind his back, turning its face to the opposite side or the west. This means we ask the Buddha's blessing to prevent danger from the front as well as the back. Thus, it is also called Phra Raksamueang–city's protective Buddha-along the belief of people in the Ayutthaya era. In front of the Wihan, there is a boundary wall made of laterite.

Prang (ปรางค์) is a stupa with a height of 24 metres. The principal prang and other directional prangs in the south, the west and the north are situated on the same base. In the east, there is a porch with a staircase. The base, body and superstructure are decorated with stucco relief. The principal prang is connected with an antechamber with murals inside. The murals on the top part of the wall depict a row of the past Buddhas sitting in niches. The paintings in the lower part depict the life of the Lord Buddha. It is assumed that these murals were painted and repaired at the same time when the Prang was built and restored around the 17^{th} Century. There is a passage and cloister around the Prang complex housing stone Buddha images built in the Dvaravati, Lop Buri, and Ayutthaya Periods. The Reclining Buddha image is situated in front of the Phra Prang. It is a cement Buddha image, built in the Ayutthaya Period, with a length of 127 Khuep 9 inches, and this temple also has a museum exhibiting different styles of jars.

To get there: take the route to the Ratchaburi National Museum; then, turn left and go straight on for about 200 metres.

Wat Khao Wang (วัดเขาวัง)

is located on Khao Sattanat which is quite small with a height of 44 metres. It is approximately 2 kilometres. west from the provincial city. There is a driving lane to the top of the mountain. King Rama V commanded to build a palace on this mountain in 1873, similar to King Narai the Great who ordered to build the Narai Ratchaniwet at Lopburi. However, King Rama V went there only once in 1877 to welcome a Portuguese envoy and never came again until the end of his reign. Later, in the reign of King Rama VII, the king yielded the palace to the temple. Also, people donated to renovate some of its parts and some buildings, which were turned into the Phra Ubosot–ordination hall-and monk's residences, and this place was later announced to be a temple. At the top, we can see a panoramic view around the town. For more details, please call Tel. 0 3231 2725.

Ban Khu Bua Ancient City (เมืองโบราณบ้านคูบัว)

is situated in Tambon Khu Bua. It is an archaeological site where many archaeological evidence have been found and indicated that Ratchaburi used to be a civilized port city in the Dvaravati Period. The architecture in Khu Bua Ancient City was influenced by the Gupta school of Indian art and evidence shows that Buddhism had been in Thailand for more than 1,000 years. Other important discovered artefacts, especially ancient Buddha images' heads, are kept in the Ratchaburi National Museum and some are kept at Wat Khlong Suwannakhiri. Ban Khu Bua Ancient City contains many archaeological evidence, such as Boran Sathan Wat Khlong which is situated near the entrance of Wat Khlong Suwannakhiri, about 5 kilometres. south from the town along Thao U-thong Road. The plan of this ancient monument is in the shape of a rectangle. In the north and the south, each side of the monument has 3 porches. In the east, the porch stretches out and is used as the stairs to climb up to the top. The lowest base is in a rectangular shape made of laterite covered with cement. There is an indentation of 3 porches along each of the lateral sides of the base. The second base is in a shape of a curved lotus, and over the base there are brickworks made up into rectangular panels decorated with stucco-work in the shape of Bua Fan Yak. The next higher base is plain supporting rectangular niches on the top and the large angular pilasters above. Between the pilasters, there is a niche called Sum Charanam with a pointed end switching with the pilasters all along the line of the wall. Besides, Lan Prathaksin–a circumambulation platform-is situated on the top of the base of the monument.

Monument No. 8 is located behind the Wat Khu Bua School. The remains of a pagoda base have a square-shaped plan with a width and length of 20.80 metres and a height of 5.40 metres. The lower base is in the shape of a large square plinth made of bricks and cement. Next to the base, the curving lotus base is situated to bear the arch with surrounding square-shaped holes and the Lan Prathaksin is on the top. The second base is the pagoda base in the shape of a bending lotus bearing a small rectangle niche under the pagoda. There is a ruin of stucco at the base but no evidence of moulded cement sculpture.

Ancient Monument No.8

is located at Mu 6, Tambon Khu Bua near Wat Suwankhiri. It is the folk museum of the Ban Khu Bua community built by the cooperation of people from many local communities and organizations. The building has two floors and each floor has many rooms. On the downstairs, there are exhibitions of artefacts in the Dvaravati style, a wax model of the museum project, the people's way of life in a Thai Yuan community immigrating from Mueang Chiang Saen in 1804 to settle down in Mueang Ratchaburi and their farming tools. On the second floor, there is the exhibition of the process of weaving traditional Pha Chok of the Thai Yuan from Chiang Saen, the showroom of Pha Chok textiles of the Thai Yuan Chiang Saen in a typical style which are more than two hundred years old, and Pha Chok in a modern style of the new generations of Thai Yuan. In addition, there is a room to exhibit the costumes of various ethnic groups in Ratchaburi such as Yuan, Song, Lao Wiang, Mon, Karen, Chinese, and native Thai. The museum opens daily from 9.00 a.m.–4.00 p.m. (Please contact in advance). For more details, please contact Dr. Udom Somporn at Tel. 08 1763 1989.

Chakri Memorial Park (สวนสาธารณะจักรีอนุสรณ์สถาน) is located at the foothill of Khao Kaen Chan, on the Phetchakasem roadside. It is a park for recreation where the statue of King Rama I is situated for people to pay homage and commemorate.

Khao Kaen Chan (เขาแก่นจันทร์)

is formerly called Khao Chan Daeng, (เขาจันทร์แดง) with a height of approximately 141 metres. It is the highest mountain in the province with a road cut through to the top of the mountain. On the top of the mountain, a wihan is situated with Phra Phuttha Nirokhantarai Chaiwat Chaturathit or local people call "Phra Si Mum Mueang", which is one of four Buddha images King Rama IX built and placed in four provinces: Ratchaburi, Lampang, Saraburi, and Phatthalung. It opens at 7.00 a.m.–6.00 p.m. Tourists can admire a beautiful sight of Ratchaburi from the top of the mountain.

Khao Luang (เขาหลวง)

is located in Tambon Ang Thong. On the top of the mountain, a respected stone Buddha image is situated. On the full moon day of the sixth lunar month of every year, people have often come to pay homage to the image for more than two hundred years. Tourists can admire a splendid view of Ratchaburi from the top of the mountain.

Khao Ngu Stone Park (อุทยานหินเขางู) is located at the foothill in the area of Khao Ngu Park, in Tambon Ko Phlapphla. It is a cave and a religious monument regarding Buddhism. In the cave, there is a Buddha image sculptured on the wall with a gesture of sitting in the European style and giving a sermon according to Buddhist art in the Dvaravati Period (5^{th}-7^{th} Century). It is widely known as Phra Phutthachai Tham Ruesi Khao Ngu. It has a flat face, connected eyebrows forming the shape of parenthesis, bulging eyes, flat nose, bolded mouth, large curls, and his halo on the top of the head is in the shape of a lotus bud. Between his ankles, there is an inscription of Pallava scripts in Sansakrit language which can be transcribed into the phrase Punyakarmachara srisamadhigupta, which means Phra Srisamadhigupta is purified by making merit. It is one important evidence of arts in the Dvaravati era. Moreover, in the cave, many sandstone Buddha images of the art of Ayutthaya era are housed. In the area of Tham Ruesi Khao Ngu, there are many interesting tourist attractions as follows:

Lord Buddha's Footprint made of laterite is located in the Wihan which is situated on the top of Khao Ngu with a height of approximately 128 metres. It is the ruin of a rectangle-shaped building made of bricks and cement.

Tham Fa Tho is located near Khao Ngu Park, about 250 metres west from Tham Ruesi Khao Ngu. On the southern wall, there are reliefs of a massive reclining Buddha image underneath a gathering of gods, and tree. In the north, there are reliefs of the Lord Buddha's two followers. The composition of sculpture in this cave is like that in Tham Cham, which depicts the scene when the Lord Buddha passed away to Nirvana. The festival to pay respect to the Lord Buddha is held every year on the first day of the waxing moon of the eleventh lunar month. Near the

Wat Nong Hoi

Khao Ngu, there are also Tham Rakhang and Khao Phrabat, on the top of which the Lord Buddha's footprint is located and which is the sight-seeing point of Khao Ngu.

To get there: drive away from the town along Highway 3087 (Ratchaburi-Chom Bueng-Suan Phueng), and go on north-westward approximately 6 kilometres., then you will see the intersection leading to the cave.

Khao Noi Thiam Chan (เขาน้อยเทียมจันทร์) is located in Tambon Ang Thong, and from the provincial city it is approximately 10 kilometres. along Phetchakasem Road. There is an old laterite ordination hall where two laterite Buddha images are situated inside. People also call those Buddha images "Luang Pho Khao Noi". There is the replica of the Buddha's footprint on top from where a panoramic view of the province is available.

Wat Nong Hoi (วัดหนองหอย)

is siuated at Mu 2, Tambon Khao Raeng, on the top of Khao Raeng. It is the place where a Wihan of Kwan Yin Bodhisattva Avalokitesvara is situated. The image is 16 metres high and has a lap width of 9 metres. The other side of the mountain is the place where Phra Phuttha Rattanakosin Mahamuni (Luangpho Yai) is situated. Many people often come and pay respect to the Buddha image here. It opens at 7.00 a.m.–6.00 p.m. There is an annual celebration during Chinese New Year.

To get there:
By car: The temple is approximately 13 kilometres from town. Follow the Khao Ngu-Boek Phrai Route for about 5 km. Tourists can drive up to the area of the Wihan.
By bus: Tourists can take a bus Ratchaburi–Nong Hoi from the market in the provincial city in front of the Government Savings Bank, and get off in front of the temple.

Amphoe Pak Tho

is located at 110 Mu 5, Ban Thai Prachan. It covers the areas in Amphoe Pak Tho's Tambon Yang Hak, Amphoe Suan Phueng's Tambon Tanaosi and Tambon Tha Khoei, and Amphoe Ban Kha's Tambon Ban Kha and Tambon Ban Bueng, totalling approximately 136,250 rai of land. Geographically, it is a complex range of mountains covered by the headwater forest of Huai Prachan or Prachan Creek. This is a significant and beautiful attraction comprising Namtok Mae Prachan, Ban Poong Krathing Hot Spring (Ban Bueng Hot Spring), and the reservoir under the shade of trees. This place is suitable for relaxation and a nature study tour.
Accommodation: The park offers two reception houses and a camping site for visitors who bring their own tents. For more information, contact the National Park at Tel. 08 7165 3278 or e-mail: thaiprachan_np@dnp.go.th.
To get there: From the city of Ratchaburi, drive along Phetchakasem Road for around 20 kilometres. Turn right to follow Highway 3206 for around 45 kilometres. Turn left toward Ban Thai Prachan for 5 kilometres before reaching the Park headquarters.

Amphoe Wat Phleng

Amphoe Wat Phleng , formerly called "Ban Phleng" is a small district next to Amphoe Mueang. In the past, it was very far from the transportation route and there were little villages spread around the area. Villagers always sang Phleng Phuang Malai in this area. There were Pho Phleng (male singer) and Mae Phleng (female singer) singing together in a competition sometimes for 3 days, 3 nights or 7 days, 7 nights and never knew who the winner was. That's why it was called "Ban Phleng" which means a song village. At present, the place remains a peaceful atmosphere and conserves the way of life of the local people along the canal. Sometimes if you have a chance, you may see farmers gather coconuts and combine them in a large long string and drag it along the ditch in their orchards that is the local process of transporting agricultural produce which is rarely seen. Along this route, visitors can drop by for refreshing coconut juice or strong iced black coffee from vendors who paddling their boats back and forth, or visit Wat Ko San Phra, the Khok Wihan Monument, and the Chaopho Lak Hin Shrine. Visitors can also travel further this route towards the Damnoen Saduak Floating Market. Visit the 100 years old Sacred Heart Church which is distinct and beautiful in a western style or contact Dok Prayong San Fan Club Tel. 0 3231 9657 or Wat Phleng District Tel. 0 3239 9471
To get there: from Montri Suriyawong Road, drive along the Mae Klong River until the end of Route 3088 and encircle to pass the shady coconut groves.

Wat Phleng (วัดเพลง)

is a district temple which serves as a place for performing religious affairs and Buddhist ceremonies by the people living in the area. During his reign, King Rama V visited the temple and gave royal tributes; such as, a container for keeping tobacco. Other interesting things include a replica of King Ramkhamhaeng's inscription stone, a Buddha image in the posture of giving blessing, and the Buddha's footprint which is enshrined in Wihan Luang-pho Ruesi.

Sacred Heart Church

Wat Pramot (วัดปราโมทย์) is a temple where visitors can inspect the Buddhist scripture hall located in the middle of a pool, which is rare to be seen. Pay homage to the image of Luangpho To, which is 159 years old, and worship the statue of King Rama V the Great.

Sacred Heart Church (โบสถ์คริสต์วัดพระหฤทัย) is a 100-year-old Christian church with a Gothic architectural style, looking attractive in a western style. All external parts have been conserved to be the same like when it was first built. The interior design follows the style of an ancient Christian church, with statues of the followers of Jesus Christ which were imported from France. Visitors should submit a letter to request for permission to visit in advance. For further information, please call Tel. 08 9913 9383, or Fax: 0 3239 9277.

Wat Ko San Phra (วัดเกาะศาลพระ)
is believed to have been built at the end of the Ayutthaya Period, as evident from the design of the gables, and Sema boundary markers.

Wat Luangpho Sot Thammakayaram

The temple was named Wat Ko San Phra since it was formerly surrounded by a canal. However, the original name of the temple had a different spelling in Thai: วัดเกาะสานพระ, but the same pronunciation: Wat Ko San Phra. (-San-means to weave.) Later, its name was changed and it has been called Wat Ko San Phra with the spelling วัดเกาะศาลพระ (-San-here refers to a shrine) until now. One of the interesting monuments includes an old ordination hall. It was told that the principal Buddha image in the hall was built following the ancient tradition, made of woven bamboo, lacquered, and gilded. For further information, please call Tel. 08 4570 7299

To get there: Drive from Montri Suriyawong Road, along the Mae Klong Riverside, passing shady coconut groves, until you reach the end of Highway 3088.

Damnoen Saduak Floating Market

Damnoen Saduak Floating Market (ตลาดน้ำดำเนินสะดวก)

or well-known as Khlong Ton Khem Floating Market, is one famous attraction of Ratchaburi, approximately 80 kilometres. from Bangkok. Around 1866, King Rama IV commanded to dig Khlong Damnoen Saduak with a distance of more than 32 kilometres. connecting the Mae Klong River at Bang Nok Khwaek to the Tha Chin River at Pratunam Bang Yang. There are several small canals, so people in Ratchaburi, Samut Songkhram, and Samut Sakhon can commute to visit each other conveniently.

Damnoen Saduak Floating Market was first known as a tourist attraction in 1967 in the picture of the floating market crowded with small rowing boats which contained necessary products for living. We could see tradesmen, who dressed in dark-coloured clothes with a hat made of palm leaves like farmers, rowing boats to sell and exchange products in the period when the waterway was the main transportation route. Damnoen Saduak Floating Market opens early in the morning until noon. Wat Prasatsit Floating Market, where we still can see traditional ways of life, opens early in the morning until 08.00 a.m. The most suitable time to visit the market is from 08.00-12.30 hrs. For more details, please contact the Tourism Public Relations Centre of Amphoe Damnoen Saduak at Tel. 0 3224 1023

Touring along the canal and admiring Damnoen Saduak Floating Market

Rental boats are available at Damnoen Saduak Floating Market. Each rowing boat costs Bt 300-400 and each long tailed boat Bt 600. The long tailed boat can contain 6-8 passengers, and it takes about 1 hour to bring them to see orchards and the process of producing fresh sugar palm sap beverage. Wat Muang Folk Museum (พิพิธภัณฑ์พื้นบ้านวัดม่วง) is situated inside Wat Muang, in Tambon Ban Muang, on the Mae Klong riverside. From the history inscribed in palm-leaved books with Mon script, Wat Muang was an old temple constructed near the end of the Ayutthaya era. At that time, most people in the Ban Muang community and along both sides of the Mae Klong Basin were Mons, living with other ethnic minorities such as Thai, Chinese, Laotian, Vietnamese, Khmer and Karen. There was an integration and exchange of different cultures until it formed the identity of the local people. In addition to the close relationship between people's culture in Ban Muang community and their old beliefs, this community has become a treasure of knowledge about Mon studies for others. This museum is the library where we can search for the history, ways of life and culture of the Mon local community from the past until now.

The exhibitions are divided into rooms to give people a better understanding. It starts from the main hall, Mon in legend, Mon in history, Mon language and script, Mon culture, Mon immigrants, Mon in Thailand and cultural leaders. There is an exhibition of artefacts, palm-leaved books inscribed with Mon script which are more than 300 years old, clothes, and appliances which point out the interesting local intellect. The exhibition gives knowledge about the importance of the Mae Klong Basin in the past, the relationship of the economy, society and culture of the community in Ban Muang, Amphoe Ban Pong and Amphoe Photharam.

The Mon Studies Centre is located inside the temple which provides Mon language courses for people on Wednesdays and Thursdays. The Wat Muang Folk Museum opens on Fridays and weekends at 9.00 a.m.–4.00 p.m. Admission is free. If you are interested in visiting on weekdays, please contact in advance. To visit in groups, please contact in advance by submitting a letter to the Abbot of Wat Muang. For more information, please call Tel. 08 6004 0786 (Contact Khun Sa-ang Phromin), 08 9885 8817, 0 3237 2548 or www.monstudies.org. Wat Muang Folk Museum invites visitors in groups of at least 10 persons to try typical food from Mon cuisine such as Kaeng Bon, Nam Pla Yam, and Kaeng Matat at lower prices. Please contact Khun Sa-ang Phromin in advance. In the area of the temple, there is a local weaving centre which sells hand-woven cloth and loincloth or Pha Khao Ma. Then, cross the Mae Klong River Bridge and go on about 7 kilometres. The museum is about 2.5 kilometres. from the entrance of the intersection.

By bus: From Bangkok, take the bus Bangkok-Kanchanaburi and get off at Amphoe Ban Pong. Wait for the local bus Ban Pong-Photharam and take it to the front of Wat Muang.

Amphoe Photharam

Wat Chet Samian Community (ชุมชนวัดเจ็ดเสมียน)

is located behind the Chet Samian Railway Station, a small railway station where all southern trains pass before reaching Ratchaburi province. The front of Chet Samian Market is next to the railway station while it backs on the Mae Klong River. One of the significant places of interest of the community is Wat Chet Samian. At the Chet Samian Old Market, an activity "All about Arts" is held on Fridays and the last weekends of each month, from 4 p.m. onwards. Visitors can see an exhibition of photos, paintings by Photharam artists, traditional performances, and display of ancient appliances, all of which are rarely-seen. For further information, please contact Suan Silp Ban Din at Tel. 0 3239 7668, 08 1831 7041.

Wat Phra Si An (วัดพระศรีอารย์)

is located at Soi Sukkhaphiban 8, Mu 9, Tambon Ban Lueak, on an area of approximately 40 rai. Formerly, it was named Wat Sa-an. The temple was surmised to be built in 1732. It was deserted. Later, its small dilapidated Ubosot of 7.75 m wide and 15 m long was found with the old principal image made of bricks, and a large pond to the north. In 1932, monks started to stay at the temple. Its name was changed to Wat Phra Si An in 1957. Presently, it houses Phra Ubosot Thongkham Roi Lan or the ordination hall of one hundred million Baht of gold. The golden Ubosot (ordination hall) is in the style of art of the late Ayutthaya period, decorated with stucco designs and paintings of the stories of Maha Janaka Jataka, the Ten Incarnations of the Lord Buddha, and the Five Buddhas. The principal Buddha image within the ordination hall is in the posture of subduing Mara. This Burmese-style white jade image was taken from Burma. Another image is Phra Si An or Ariya Mettaya which is an ancient Buddha image with prominent features: a preaching fan is in front of the image and the robe-wearing style is similar to that of the image in the Gandhara period. This sacred image is worshipped by the public. Cannon-ball trees from India have been grown in the temple. Buddhism activities; namely, Dharma camp and art of speaking camp, are held for children and youth. For More information, please call Tel: 0 3223 2595 or http://phrasian.spaces.live.com

To get there: Take the route to Amphoe Photharam on Highway 3080, around 500 kilometres. from the Bang Phae Intersection.

Nang Yai Museum Wat Khanon (พิพิธภัณฑ์หนังใหญ่วัดขนอน)

is situated at Wat Khanon, in Tambon Soi Fa, on the Mae Klong riverside, approximately 10 kilometres. from Amphoe Photharam. It is a typical Thai house with an exhibition about Nang Yai, its history, and process of making Nang Yai puppets. There are 313 complete Nang Yai puppets and most of them are characters in the Ramayana including many show sets such as Hanuman Thawai Waen, Sahatsa Kuman, and Phao Krung Longka. The performance set Suek Intharachit 1 is the royal project of Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn who realized the value of the performance and art of Nang Yai or grand shadow show which is approved to be a high-class work of art. All Nang Yai figures are carved. The performance includes a grand traditional orchestra with the graceful movements of persons who operate the leather puppets along with the speeches of a narrator and singing by a singer. Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn asked the temple to conserve the performance of the grand shadow show which was made up by Phrakhru Sattha Sunthon (Luangpu Klom), an ex-abbot of Wat Khanon in the reign of King Rama V. The ex-abbot had excellent craftsmanship and at that time there were already a few Nang Yai figures at the temple, but he wanted to make larger ones. Thus, he invited Khru Ang who used to play Khon with the Ratchaburi Governor's troupe, Chang Chat and Chang Cha who were Ratchaburi people, and Chang Phuang who was a Ban Pong villager to join together to make the first set of puppets of the show named Hanuman Thawai Waen. Later, they made up another nine sets. Those leather figures were valuable treasures of the temple which were conserved from generation to generation. Then, the temple built the museum and this is the only temple which has a show of its own. The complete puppets and the show troupe are under the patronage of the temple and the Nang Yai shadow show has been performed until now. The museum opens daily at 8.00 a.m.–5.00 p.m. The show is performed more than 200 years ago. Formerly, it was called "Wat Klang" or "Pia To"; later, King Rama V gave the new name "Wat Khongkharam". The temple consists of the Phra Ubosot, or the ordination hall, surrounded by 7 Mon-style pagodas. In the ordination hall, the gilded principal Buddha image, whose axis is made of laterite, is situated. The base of the Buddha image is made in a form of combined upturned and overturned lotuses. The murals were made elaborately since the beginning of the Rattanakosin era. Each painting seems to be animated and tells the history of the Lord Buddha, which can be rarely seen. In addition, a typical Thai monk's cell with 9 rooms, built in the Thon Buri Period, is now changed to be the folk museum. It is the place to collect artefacts relating to the local area in order that the next generation can learn about its history. The museum opens daily at 9.00 a.m.–4.30 p.m. Admission is Bt 10. is located in Tambon Tao Pun, approximately 9 kilometres west from Amphoe Photharam if you depart from the town of Ratchaburi. Take the route Khao Ngu-Boek Phrai and go on for about 17 kilometres. In the area of Khao Chong Phran, a beautiful cave named "Tham Phra Non" is situated with more than 100 Buddha images and a massive reclining Buddha image which is 9 metres long inside. However, the most famous thing to see at Khao Chong Phran is a giant flock of more than a million bats flying out together of the cave and forming a large black and long line across the sky. This activity lasts for hours every evening after sunset, around 5.30 p.m. In summer, they will fly to the east but in winter they fly to the west.

Murals at Wat Khongkharam

Tham Sarika (ถ้ำสาริกา) is located in Tambon Thammasen, on the same route to Khao Chong Phran. Follow Highway 3089, and at Km 9-10, take a turn at the junction and go on for another 2 km.

Bat Cave at Khao Chong Phran

Tham Khao Bin

You can see the small mountain where a gorgeous cave known as Tham Sarika is situated. King Bhumibol gave the name to this place when he visited and enscribed his royal initials at the entrance of the cave.

Amphoe Chom Bueng

Tham Khao Bin (ถ้ำเขาบิน)

is located in Tambon Hin Kong on the Khao Bin Range with an area of about 5 rai (8,000 square metres). It is in a national forest reserve area. The depth of the cave is about 300 metres, measuring from the entrance to the deepest area of the cave. The cave is divided into 8 rooms, depending on the characteristics of beautiful stalagmites and stalactites as follows: Siwa Sathan, Thong Akhantuka, Than Anodat, Sakunachat Khuha, Thewasapha Samoson, Kinnon Thatsana, Phrueksa Himmaphan, and Utthayan Thuaithep. The route inside the cave is arranged tidily and the light provided helps visitors to create more imagination. This was the first cave of Thailand which arranged a lighting system. It was believed that the name Tham Khao Bin was given according to the shape of stalagmites and stalactites which looked like an eagle stretching its wings gracefully. Inside the cave, a small mineral pond which people believe is a holy pond is located. The cave opens daily at 8.00 a.m.–5.00 p.m. Admission for adults is Bt20 and for children is Bt10. Natural Science Park

Admission is Bt5. For more details, please call Tel. 0 3232 9025, 0 3271 1086.

Natural Science Park (อุทยานธรรมชาติวิทยา) is at 254 Mu 7, Ban Huai Phak, Tambon Suan Phueng, in the area of the Tanao Si Mountains. With an area of 132,905 rai (212,648,000 square metres), it covers the area in Tambon Suan Phueng and Tambon Tanao Si. It was built following Her Royal Highness Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn's conception with the purpose to conserve and refine the forest area and to research the social, physical and biological characteristics of the park to arrange learning sources for children, youth and others. Since H.R.H. Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn has been visiting here many times and found that the forest contains bio-diversity, she gave guidelines to conserve and develop this area. Inside the park, there is the Natural Science Information Hall which collects general information about the park, in terms of social sciences, physical science and biology by arranging exhibitions, printed media, video presentations and a library for searching information about the environment. In addition, there are shops selling souvenirs, books, postcards with the picture of the Natural Science Park, royal literature of the H.R.H. Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn, and products from the Royal Career Support Project. Furthermore, the park provides 2 nature study routes:

Route 1: Start from the office, passing Bo Khlueng Hot Stream and turn back to the office, taking 1 hour.

Route 2: Start from the office and walk along the waterfall, passing Bo Khlueng Hot Stream and Most participants are dressed in traditional costumes in the style of the King Rama V Period, and there is a costume competition. In addition, there are exhibitions to commemorate the king's kindness, cultural performances, and local products for sale.

Dragon Jar

Khao Ho or 'Ang Mi Thong' Festival (ประเพณีกินข้าวห่อ หรืออั๊งหมี่ทอง) is a Su Khwan ceremony or the blessing ceremony for happiness and longevity in life, held around the ninth lunar month. Karens believe that the ninth lunar month is a bad time when ghosts and evil hunt and eat "Khwan"-spirit -of people, so those people may get sick or die. Normally, this ceremony is often held on the full moon day of the ninth lunar month, but if some families are not convenient, they can change to any day in the ninth month. In the ceremony, people boil "Khao Ho" which is sticky rice moulded and wrapped in a cone shape; then they will boil it like Khanom Chang. In the past, they ate Khao Ho by dipping it in honey but at present they often dip it in sliced coconut. On the day they boil Khao Ho, the Su Khwan Ceremony will be held, too. It starts with poking a wooden plate and blowing a Khaen for entertainment; then the elders in each family will tie red threads on the children's wrists and give a blessing for good luck.

INTERESTING ACTIVITIES

Cruising along King Rama V's Route (ล่องเรือตามลอยเสด็จพระพุทธเจ้าหลวง) In the past, when this canal had just been dug, King Rama V would like to know the real ways of life of his people, so he traveled alone by Mat Kasuai boat. The route he took was one important way in history which represented his royal benevolence towards his people's lives. Therefore, there are many things to learn while we travel along this route. The route starts at Khlong Damnoen Saduak Pier, passing grape orchards. Visit to taste coconut juice before arriving at a mixed agricultural farm to see old typical Thai houses on the riverside. Taste fresh coconut palm sap to decrease thirst and try boat noodles of the recipe owned by the winner of the Damnoen Saduak Prize. Pass the front of Wat Choti Thayakaram and Ban Chek Huat, where King Rama V used to visit as a commoner and had lunch. Pass Lat Phi Market and turn to the middle of Damnoen Saduak Floating Market again. For more details, please call Tel. 0 3224 1023 or 08 9819 4383.

Driving Route (เส้นทางขับรถเที่ยว) If you drive your own car, it is suggested that you take the beautiful route from Phetchakasem Road, passing Amphoe Ban Kha and arriving at Amphoe Suan Phueng. Or else, you can take the route Amphoe Pak Tho Intersection (Highway 3206) to Ban Pong Krathing (Highway 3313) before getting to Amphoe Ban Kha and Amphoe Suan Phueng. However, you can take the route Huai Chinnasi, opposite to the entrance of Tambon Khu Bua (Highway 3337). This route passes Ban Thung Luang and meets the first route at Ban Pong Krathing; then, it leads to King Amphoe Ban Kha and Amphoe Suan Phueng, too. It is one of very wonderful routes in Ratchaburi which passes through the forest.

Homestay: For visitors who love learning the ways of people's lives along the riverside, Ratchaburi provides homestays where you can see how people live along both sides of a canal. Visit many important monuments such as Wat Charoen Sukharam Worawihan, the house where King Rama V visited when he passed Khlong Damnoen Saduak. At night, row a boat along the Mae Klong River and see fire-flies. For a group of 6-8 tourists, a package tour of 2 days and one night costs 900-1,000 Baht per person.
